A town from the past

My name's Richard. A week ago my parents and I visited a great history museum. It had lots of interesting things, but what I liked most was a room they had about the history of our town, with photos from the 19th century. There was one photo of some men on horses that I really liked. They looked poor. My dad explained that his grandfather, too, used to have a horse because there didn't use to be cars or motorbikes back then. They had carriages, a kind of car that horses pulled. In another photo there was a family. Their clothes were very different from ours. These people looked richer. The man wore a tall hat and the woman a lovely dress.

Before we went home, I told my dad that I would love to spend a day in a town like that, without cars or bikes and only horses and people walking on the street. 'We have got a present for you,' my dad said. 'There is a place out of town which looks like a town from the past. Tomorrow, we can spend the day there.'

I was so excited. The next day, we started early in the morning. It took us about an hour to get there. It was great! The people there wore old clothes that looked like the ones in the photos. They grew vegetables and went around on horses, just like in the museum pictures.

The untidy room

Hello! I'm Jack and I'm twelve years old. I don't like housework but my parents say that I have to tidy my room every weekend, so that's what I usually do on Saturday. Then, my room is clean for the rest of the week.

Anyway, last weekend, my friend, Richard, came by. 'Shall we go for a ride?' he said. 'It's a great day outside.' My room was tidy so I asked my dad if I could go, and he said yes! When we got to the park, Paul and Michael, two of our classmates, were there. We all rode our bikes in the park and had lots of fun for hours.

When I got back home at noon, I was very tired. I had lunch and went to my room to rest. I pushed the door open and I couldn't believe what I saw. My room was a mess. There were books and CDs everywhere. My lamp was on the floor, broken. Some of my clothes were on the floor, too. 'But I tidied my room in the morning!' I thought. 'How did this happen?' Then I heard something moving under the bed. I looked and there it was: my brother's cat. I got really angry, but when the cat came towards me, I smiled. We started playing with my coloured pencils and soon there was colour all over its fur. My mum came in and when she saw the cat, she started laughing, too. 'Shall I help you clean now?' she asked. We tidied the room again and, of course, cleaned the cat, too.
